Tattoos...Why and what they mean to me. First off, to answer your question, this tattoo is real. It was taken moments after I got it. The number 1 question everyone ask is "did that hurt?" Take it from me, if something looks painful, it probably was. Even though I know the pain of a tattoo, it doesn't keep me away. It's a different pain. I can say getting a tattoo is my release and in a sense, my drug. I find myself getting a tattoo when things in my life are kinda fucked up. Yea, I know it might sound a little strange, but hey, it works for me. This tattoo your looking at is my latest piece. As you can see, I'm my biggest fan and if I don't believe in myself, why should I expect anyone else to. My life is 1DOWN, it's been there for me since 1996. Never turned on me, cheated on me, lied to me. I have nothing to hide when it comes to showing respect and appreciation to something that has treated me well, so this is my way of saying Thank you to myself for never giving up and showing the world where my heart is. I guess it's kinda scary because when I get into something, I'm full throttle. So does this mean if I got married I'm gonna tattoo my wife's name on my forehead? Nah! My tattoos represent a time line of my life and pretty much tell a story about me. Now that's a tattoo I never want to live with, some chick's name on me for the rest of my life who more than likely I'm not with anymore. Matter of fact, the other day I saw this fool with a tattoo of some chicks "lips" on his fuckin cheek and I wanted to ask him so bad if they were still together. I would bet she dumped his ass!

Make sure you can live with your tattoos for the rest of your life!
